Professions and Social Identity
New European Historical Research on Work, Gender and Society

The authors use the prism of professions and social identity to look at how the fields of social history, gender history and labour history can interact, developing a new methodological space that goes beyond current national and disciplinary research traditions.

Lud'a Klusáková (ed.)

Frontiers and Identities
Exploring the Research Area

The volume investigates the assumptions that underlie European research on where we live and who we are. An international and interdisciplinary working group, including historians and sociologists, addresses ways in which national and international historiographies look at borders, frontiers and identities.

Paperback, bound and sewn, 17 x 24 cm., 232 pages € 20,00

Csaba Lévai (ed.)

Europe and the World in the European Historiography

An international and interdisciplinary working group explores a number of usual and unusual paths for understanding the complex links that underlie the European vision and experience of the 'world'. The volume addresses various ways in which national and international historiographies observe relations between Europe and other continents.

Paperback, bound and sewn, 17 x 24 cm., 304 pages € 20,00
ISBN 88-8492-403-0

Florencia Peyrou

La Comunidad de Ciudadanos
El Discurso Democrático-Republicano en España

The volume consists of a careful reading of the political discourse of the democratic-republican movement in Spain at a critical juncture in its development. The movement unified around an idea of 'universal' male citizenship, only to be torn apart because of divergent general visions of the relations between individuals and society. Florencia Peyrou addresses a historical period of great importance in the development of Spanish – and, indeed, European – citizenship.

Paperback, bound and sewn, 15 x 21 cm., 184 pages € 15,00
